Revision:

Order of Adjectives

When using more than one adjective to describe a noun, there are some general rules to follow.

- 'Opinion' adjectives come before 'fact' adjectives in word order:
What a beautiful silk dress. (It is my opinion that it is beautiful, but it is a fact that it is made of silk)
- Adjectives describing general qualities come before those describing particular qualities:
He drives a big German car. (the car's size — 'big' — is a general quality, and the fact that it is German is more particular)

Here is a general guide to the order of adjectives:

opinion	size/ shape	colour	material/ origin
lovely	big	red	cotton	jumper

It is, however, unusual to use more than three adjectives before a noun. One or two well-chosen adjectives are much more effective.
